Synopsis

Alexander Bryant has lived his entire life making everyone else happy. After meeting Lincoln, will he have the courage to finally do what makes him happy? Alexander “ I like to imagine myself a rebel “ an ass-kicker that takes what he wants regardless of what others think. I make my own path and flip off the people who don’t agree. I laugh in the face of conflict. Nobody tells me what to do. In reality, everything about me is a lie “ past, present, and future. The Bryant name requires certain things and all my decisions are based on those requirements. I like football, but the family name demands I love it. I want to be an artist, but the family name demands I be a lawyer. The family demands I fall in love with a nice girl, but I’m falling for, well, the opposite of nice AND girl. I’m a coward and a liar. Lincoln “ I like to imagine myself a loner “ a cold heartless bastard that takes what he wants. I lived the biggest part of my life with parents that were ashamed of me for more reasons that one could begin to count, so I trust no one. I have a low tolerance for bullshit and hate liars. So why did I go and fall in love with the biggest liar of them all?

I'm a fan of T.S McKinney's writing and her sense of humor she always seems to instill in her characters. Even when they are damaged and a little broken she manages to lighten up the atmosphere with humor. And bless Alexander and everyone that supports him because he is a little broken. He has been pushed and shoved and overlooked for so long from his family, specifically his grandparents, forcing him to carry secrets and hide away his true self that sometimes he forgets who he really is. He has a couple close friends on the football team that know more about him than anyone but even they don't know his true passion and what he does behind closed doors. Then, almost on a dare, he meets Lincoln at a BDSM club. He's dominant, sexy, sinful, large and very much in charge, and has a maturity for someone who should be much older than his years of 25 but he has his own secrets and he's not interested in sharing them with anyone, at the moment. But he sees something in Alexander's eyes that call to him, something that reminds him of his own pain and he wants him with an intensity like he's never known. His passion and desire for him is at an all time high and he plans to make Alexander his, at all costs. But, will the cost be too high when he is left heartbroken and alone? Alexander is used to doing what he's told so it comes at no surprise to him when he does what Lincoln tells him to, but what does surprise him, somewhat, is he is enjoying the heck out of it. So much so that he can't stop thinking about what happened at the club, the crop, the feelings he experienced, sub-space, and he knows he wants more. He wants more of Lincoln and more of what Lincoln can give him.

To Say I was blown away by this book would be putting it Lightly. Drawn in by a cover â " I mean can we just look at those abs and â | yeah, so total cover wre on this one as I was scanning Goodreads to see what everyone was reading. T.S. McKinney is a new author to me and I wasnâ™t sure what to expect going in, let me tell you I will be back and have already purchased another book by her. I was able to immediately connect with both MC which is something that doesnâ™t always happen, but I was enamored by Lincoln and Alexander straight away. Alexander Bryant is the QB at his college in good olâ™ Alabama where some areas of the south have not caught up with equal rights and acceptance of being gay. This however, doesnâ™t bother him â " he isnâ™t a homophobe â " his best friend, Tank, is proudly bisexual. Alexander is so unhappy in his life, living the life his grandfather and father dictate, following in their footsteps against his own desires, playing football when all he would rather do is paint. So when his friends talk him into going to an â œAdultâ • club for a night of fun and to assure they are allowed into the club, who would refuse entrance to the star-QB after all, he has no idea what he is about to see and no idea how quickly his life is about to change. When he sees men and women being spanked, wearing lots of leather, and tied up he is intrigued to say the least. In fact he is scoping the scene of the club when its owner walks up to the guys table and the real fun begins! Lincoln Montgomery he is a self-assured, bad-@$$ Dominant who owns The Den “ the Adult club the guys from the football team end up at, and one look at the beauty on the security monitor with the pale blue eyes and he knows he has to have him. Lincoln wants Alexander. He will have Alexander.
