Can't Live Without You

Synopsis

Justin Hawthorne worked hard to realize his silver-screen dreams, making his way from small-town Pennsylvania to Hollywood and success. But it hasn't come without sacrifice. When Justin's father kicked him out for being gay, George Miller's family offered to take him in, but circumstances prevented it. Now Justin is back in town and has come face to face with George, the man he left without so much as a good-bye | and the man he's never stopped loving. Justin's disappearance hit George hard, but he's made a life for himself as a home nurse and finds fulfillment in helping others. When he sees Justin again, George realizes the hole in his heart never mended, and he isn't the only one in need of healing. Justin needs time out of the public eye to find himself again, and George and his mother cannot turn him away. As they stay together in George's home, old feelings are rekindled. Is a second chance possible when everything George cares about is in Pennsylvania and Justin must return to his career in California? First they'll have to deal with the reason for Justin's abrupt departure all those years ago.

Customer Reviews

I love second chance romances and this is one of the best. Justin is a movie star who works very hard at his craft and at the same time keeps his reputation clean. When Justin receives a phone call that his father is dying and would like for him to come home it triggers a reaction that guts Justin. His father kicked him out of the house when he revealed he was gay and Justin took off for California to pursue his dream of becoming a movie star. But, is that the whole sequence of events? One person was particularly involved in Justin's life at the time and he never understood being left behind without a word. George was Justin's boyfriend in their small town in Pennsylvania. Both George and Justin talked about a future together and then suddenly Justin was gone, with no explanation. Several years pass and both George and Justin have tried to move on but for each of them, their first love still smolders in their hearts. When Justin returns home in response to his father's request to see him one more time, Justin expects to fly in, see his father, whom he still despises, and leave immediately. When he finds that George is his father's home care nurse one complication leads to another, keeping Justin in town longer than he expects. Andrew Grey writes characters who are well developed and three dimensional. There are a number of secondary characters who are critical to the story. Some are positive forces in Justin and George's lives while others are malicious. George's mother and Justin's best friend Ethan are very important characters. There are a two or three less than well-meaning characters, and in fact one is downright evil. If you expect everyone to get their just due you may find that you don't always get what you want.
