Customer Reviews

The Tease and Denial series is one that has taken me on an extremely fulfilling journey. Grif's Toy showed us in beautiful, sexy and sometimes painful detail, what made Grif the man he became when he met Wes and how their relationship was formed. Likewise, Wes's Denial does the same thing, but obviously, this is the story of Wes's development, showing his life before and after Grif. Again, Mr. Tonlet takes us back to show us various events throughout Wes's life that help to shine a little more light on his kinks and how Wes became the man and a "dom" he is with Grif. These aren't just flashbacks for the sake of telling a story though. They are pivotal times in his life, good and bad, that show just how deep a character he is. From his time in the military to his training under another master dom, they are all pieces that fall into place during the current time in the story. Wes carries with him a major load of guilt and shame from past events, along with the guilt he has feeling as though he is hiding a part of himself from Grif, a part he believes will surely make Grif walk away. It is also through these events that we meet some other wonderful characters that left me longing for more of their story. Thomas and Henrik are two of those pretty amazing characters. Thomas is the master dom Wes™ turns to, and Henrik is his sub. Their segment contains some of the most beautiful scenes I™ve read. I absolutely fell in love with Henrik and really hope to learn more about him. In the current time, we meet new friends, Quinn and Gage, who live a similar life to that of Wes and Grif. Again, we are given snippets of their backstory, but just enough to make you hungry for more details. There are some characters we already know (and love) that it was great to see again.

TonletPublisher: Joseph lance TonletGenre: RomanceRated: Mature BDSM I am always excited to have a dry spell (pardon the pun) as a review chair. Sometimes it is slow enough that I get to choose books and get to read new to me authors. My friend and reviewer/blogger Lisa Arbitrary mentioned this series and hmmm I did have the time to read it. Before I begin I must mention, this story is not just an M/M Romance. It may not be for all readers. To explain though, our author has written an epic love story spanning the lives of Marcus and Wes from their beginnings. We learned in each book about them, and what made them who they were exactly when they met. Then we watched them grow even closer in this second book Wes™s Denial; when Wes finally shared his needs. Slowly before our eyes two became one with trust, and love. They were perfect for each other and this awesome author took us there step by step. We followed Grif™s life in Grif™s Toy when Marcus learned quite suddenly at a young age he had a body to be ridiculed. This humiliation would follow him forever. We learned in Wes™ Denial about Wes™ life, and how the flashbacks we follow have also formed who Wes is. Chocolate, Vanilla and in between were their sweet acceptance of each other, a need for the two of them to fulfill. Joseph Lance Tonlet, I feel privileged to have read your two books. I did it bleary eyed over this weekend because I couldn™t put both down. You are a master of words, writing a symphony, music of a journey you have taken us on. This is one I would not have missed for the world. I must say the Epilogue just about did me in. No Spoilers.
